

Thank-You Posters

Labor Day Idea: thanking community helpers

Hands down, these posters are a great way for youngsters to thank workers in their community. Explain that on Labor Day, community workers deserve a special thank-you. Invite youngsters to name some workers in their communities, such as firefighters, police officers, doctors, mail carriers, and veterinarians. Then enlist students' help in deciding to which workers to give a thank-you poster. Program a large sheet of poster board as shown. Help each youngster trace his hand, and invite him to sign his name inside his handprint. Deliver the completed posters and, if desired, take a picture of the workers holding their poster to show students. What a handy way to say thanks!
